"HyperMotion Technology's ability to match real-life player characteristics means that we can create more realistic and varied gameplay experiences," said Daniel Ferreira, senior producer at EA SPORTS. "From the dribble to the tackle, we'll be able to replicate all the tactical aspects of being a player." All players will have their characteristics calibrated individually, and will behave differently depending on their individual speed, strength and stamina. These factors also impact how they run, dribble, tackle and pass the ball. Most of the action is generated from 30 unique data types specific to each player and each drill, including kicks, punches and more. "FIFA Football" allows players to make finely controlled passes and to dribble with pinpoint precision. The player's awareness of the specific characteristics of the opponent is a vital element of the game. New in-game visuals engine, ENGINE12 New in-game visuals engine, ENGINE12 The new in-game visuals engine, which was developed alongside the most realistic weather model for any football simulation, uses a zBrush 3-D rendering engine. It has been designed to give players a completely new level of realism by improving the game engine. Players will now experience the game engine at its best as it provides game-relevant weather, lighting and reflections; more realistic physics including density; and the ability to individually calibrate player attributes. It also offers a variety of improvements over last year's football engine, including more player animations, more dynamic visuals for player collisions and more realistic player movements for goalkeepers. The full list of new features includes: Improved player animations: With the new in-game visuals engine, players move, tackle and fight for the ball with more realistic animation. Goalkeepers can dive, and players can make more varied and realistic goalkeeper saves. Improved ball physics: Players can now tackle and defend the ball with more realistic moves. Players use more finesse when controlling the ball, make more difficult kicks and more realistic passes. Goalkeeper AI: Goalkeepers are smarter and more reactive when players are close to their goal. They can pass and kick the ball as players come close to their goal, and in defender-rich areas, goalkeepers will be more active. Goalkeepers will also make more subtle dives to gather the ball. Player attribute calibrations: Players

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- The fastest-ever and most realistic on-field gameplay featuring close-control action and precise ball control.
- Global Gameplay
- FIFA Ultimate Team brings more additions to the game than any other new mode.
- Vision Control
- New Vision Control is ultra responsive and easy to use, reducing hand input to an absolute minimum. It not only makes the ball come and go quicker, but also responds more accurately to the player's hand movements and body positions.
- Simplified Controls
- FIFA 22 introduces Button Menus that streamline manual control into a more intuitive and better-feeling experience for core players. Simplified controls have been realized via changing the 3D linear control with 2D auto-execution features.
- New Match Types
- The new Match Types give players greater freedom on the field in all aspects of play. In possession, these three match types offer a way to handle the ball in innovative ways, compared to the only two options in the last FIFA version, when once a player controlled the ball and the other had it just waiting to attack. Winning possession through tackle, through the use of the ball or out of your area with a simple dribble or positional "sit" instead of an old-fashioned one-timer sees the concept of giving a team possession of the ball being revolutionized - and not a moment too soon.
- New Teammate Physic
- FIFA 22 introduces new and enhanced physics that real player movement drives off of with a new Teammate Physics system that gives players the feeling that their teammates are reacting to the momentum that goes with players connected to each other in the game.

Q: Will FIFA 22 be the last EA Sports football game to be released on the PlayStation 2 and Xbox? A: Why is it the last game? The short answer is that we don't have an announcement on any games coming after 22. The reason is that we felt 22 was the right number of games for the franchise. It's a good amount that most PlayStation 2 owners will want to get their hands on. With FIFA 19 in development, the clock is ticking to get it out

What's new in Fifa 22:

- New Livescore Fusion - Now you can view a live score and instantly earn points based on what happens in the game, including how many goals you score, how many you concede and how many open goals you convert. Alternatively, you can just see how your team is faring in the match. You can view this on-the-fly in a number of different ways. You can choose "overall" or "head to head" matches to see just how your team is performing against other teams - or even just see how your team is performing versus one player.
- New Dynamic Difficulty Settings - With Dynamic Difficulty Settings, you can set the game difficulty to two levels: Easy and Hard. Combined, the two Modes will allow you to choose how challenging you'd like the match to be played on.
- New Bio-metric Substitutions - This year, Bio-metric Substitutions is no longer just a training tool. Biometric data from real-life players can now be integrated into the game, allowing for a FIFA experience that's authentic and highly advanced.
- Improved ball physics - Better control over the ball, along with a new ball model that captures the nuances of the FIFA ball. This should mean that the ball will behave better and pass less like a dead football, while reacting more realistically to the players and the weather.
- Improved player animations - Skin tone variations and motion capture data give more confidence and authenticity.
- Suits now look more authentic and realistic - New material model for player uniforms. Now the players look more authentic and match the Visual Player model and ball.
- Deeper penetration and higher ball control - New Roughness settings will make players more playable when struck at extremely high speeds, and added vertical logic to help players control the ball at impact.
- Fan hub now fully interactive - Now you can do more than just watch the live match. When you do, you'll see player ratings, movement feedback, and keep a summary of stats and achievements complete with live player ratings.
- Limited VIP Club Access - Fans can now access the brand-new VIP Club. VIPs can unlock additional areas
